

New TARGET

Published by: The Searchlight Victims Support Group: Price 50p

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE

1996 R918

QUEEN'S BENCH DIVISION

MASTER TENNANT

MORRIS RILEY

Plaintiff

and

- (1) Gerry Gable
- (2) Searchlight Magazine Limited
- (3) Ray Hill
- (4) Russell Press Limited

Defendants

SEARCHLIGHT VICTIM DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Welcome to New TARGET issue number Eighteen

For new readers, we view our task as demonstrating our opposition to Searchlight's policy of exposing and harassing political opponents and their families at their homes, in the street and at their workplaces. Since our conception, it has never been our intention to present political policies, but simply to demonstrate to Searchlight, and its supporters, that they too are vulnerable to the exposure tactics that they either employ, or support. While Searchlight continues to print photographs and personal details of political opponents, then New TARGET will reciprocate by publishing details of Searchlight supporters.

We would like to make it clear however, we would NOT wish to see any Searchlight supporters exposed by New TARGET being subjected to intimidation or harassment. But, all Searchlight supporters should be aware that, SELF-DEFENCE IS NO OFFENCE, and we will continue to defend ourselves by exposing them, until they condemn Searchlight's tactics, and assist us in defeating this evil.

Until Victory!

Did the "Order of the White Knights" Originate in Clayhall ?

Searchlight has a history of successfully bamboozling gullible journalists into accepting as fact spurious tales of inside information about far-right terror groups and their alleged activities. During the London nail-bomb campaign Searchlight earned sizeable sums of money selling tales of how a mysterious (or should it be mythical?) racist group, The White Wolves were behind the murderous campaign. When some enterprising journalists who were not dazzled by Searchlight's self-proclaimed brilliance carried out their own investigations and checked with reliable contacts within the racist-right, they found that nobody had ever heard of the White Wolves and nobody has heard of them since!

Then with supreme chutzpah Searchlight introduced Mathew Collins to the media of whom some of the more gullible actually printed Collins's assertions that his former comrades in a Nazi terror group Combat 18 were really those behind the bombing campaign. The Guardian newspaper, the daily journal of the intellectual-left, actually paid Searchlight for the privilege of printing information that ultimately was proved by the police and the Crown Prosecution Service to be a lie. Collins acted alone in his murderous campaign. No White Wolves! No C18!

But seemingly some sections of the press haven't learnt a lesson from this. In the July 1st edition of the Observer newspaper, the favourite Sunday read of the gullible left, Searchlight-friendly journalist, Paul Harris revealed that he had discovered a devious plot by the extreme-right to initiate a campaign of racial violence in Bradford.

The article, which carried an advertisement for the "Searchlight anti-fascist campaign" claimed that a new racist group had been formed called "The Order of the White Knights".

Apparently this new group was so elite that "members can only join if they have a long record of activity on the far-right and have carried out racist attacks, making police infiltration difficult".

Apart from being tailor-made for Searchlight asset (or is it liability?) Ray Hill to join, no evidence of the group's existence was offered. Although a few crude leaflets swiftly produced in a smart semi in Clayhall will no doubt appear later and the gullible press will fork out more money for an "exclusive".

Will they never learn?

www.searchlightmagazine.com/
For the Searchlight anti-fascist campaign

The Observer's Searchlight Advertisement

AFTER ELECTION HUMILIATION WHAT IS THE FUTURE FOR THE SOCIALIST ALLIANCE ?

The Searchlight-friendly, Socialist Alliance is in turmoil following their humiliation in the recent General Election. Despite standing over 100 candidates they only managed to save their deposit in two constituencies. Former Labour MP Dave Nellist, (Coventry N-E) and Neil Thompson (St Helens South).

Socialist Alliance National Chairman Nellist achieved their highest vote with 7.08%. Twenty candidates polled less than 1%.

Despite this obvious humiliation at the hands of the electorate the SWP's "big three", John Rees, Robe Hoveman and Mike Marquesees issued a statement the following day claiming, "the Socialist Alliance made a great start in building a nationwide socialist alternative to new Labour".

Perhaps embarrassed by this statement and fearing an adverse reaction from the membership Marqusee absented himself from the SA's executive committee meeting held the following week.

The meeting, chaired by Dave Nellist went surprisingly calmly and his suggestion that the poor results were due to the massive amounts of abstentions by the electorate were well received by many of the more gullible delegates.

Suggestions that the SA become a fully fledged political party with its own magazine were not particularly welcomed by the SWP delegates who could see their own party being the major casualty in such a move. (Unless the SWP could completely dominate it)

A major conference is planned possibly in November to discuss these issues.

Who's Who in the Socialist Alliance

The Socialist Alliance comprises of six extreme—left organisations. The Socialist Workers Party, the Socialist Party (formerly Militant), Workers Power, the Communist Party of Great Britain, the International Socialist Group and the Alliance for Workers Liberty. Of this six, three are known to be overtly friendly with Searchlight. The SWP, the CPGB and elements of the Socialist party.

Unfortunately our source could not identify all of the delegates attending the meeting but the following were spotted.

John Rees (Fuhrer, SWP) Dave Nellist (Socialist Party and SA chairman) Declan O'Neil (SA treasurer. SWP) John Bridge (CPGB) Martin Thomas (Alliance for Workers Liberty) Mark Hoskinson (Workers Power) Maggie Manning (Socialist Party) Clive Heemskirk (Socialist Party) Terry Conway (International Socialists) John Rothery (SWP)

=

We welcome the change of direction by the extreme-left in entering the electoral system instead of following the undemocratic agenda adopted by Searchlight. But we do wonder if due to this public humiliation will they again return to the pipe dreams of revolution and the politics of hate.

We shall be watching closely!

OLDHAM RACE RIOTS – AND THE SWP CONNECTION

The recent racial violence in several Midlands towns has been blamed on the political activities of nationalist groups such as the National Front and the British National Party.

In the aftermath of the riots in Oldham, mainly conducted by Asian groups, national newspapers were quoting Prime Minister, Tony Blair as saying he felt that outsiders were in some way responsible for agitating and encouraging violence between opposing factions.

But, was Blair correct in his assumptions that the outsiders were from the nationalist side of the political spectrum?

Certainly both the NF and BNP had been active in the area since the racially motivated attack on a white pensioner by Asian thugs.

The NF claimed to have responded to a call for support from sections of the White community and the BNP had started campaigning in support of candidates chosen to contest the two Oldham constituencies in the then forthcoming General Election.

So who were the outsiders suspected of planning and the violence?

To arrive at a logical conclusion we must first examine the evidence.

1: The brunt of the violence was directed by rioters against the POLICE.

2: The majority of the rioters were young Asians.

To take the latter point first, it seems reasonable to accept that neither the NF or the BNP have enough influence within the Asian community to be able to encourage young Asians to go on to the streets and cause a riot. But who does?

Secondly, it was the police, not the White community that became the main target of these Asian rioters. It is a fact that neither the NF nor the BNP have ever attacked the police. But, who does have a history of organising violent demonstrations in which the police often become the primary target? The Socialist Workers Party!

In 1993 at Welling, Kent, SWP rioters hospitalised nineteen police officers. During the riots on Mayday 2000, which again saw the police, targeted for vicious attacks several members of the SWP were arrested.

Mr. Blair needs to look no further than the Socialist Worker newspaper of the 5th of May for evidence of the real outsider's bent on causing trouble in Oldham!

Page 16 reveals that the SWP puppet-group, the Anti-Nazi League had been active in the town centre the previous Saturday distributing material attacking both legitimate nationalist political activity, and the local senior police officer, Superintendent Dick Crawshaw. The same page also carried an advertisement bearing the AnaL "Arrow" logo urging people to "Stop the NF march" and details of assembly arrangements.

So here are your outside agitators Mr. Blair, the Socialist Workers Party and what are you going to do about them?

SEARCHLIGHT VICTIM DIES AFTER COURT VICTORY

We were much saddened by news of the death, on June 16th, of Searchlight victim, Morris Riley. Morris, who had a heart attack, was just 55 years old.

In the August 1993 issue of Searchlight Morris, a chartered accountant and author was accused by Searchlight of working for the British Secret Intelligence Service (MI6).

With this defamation in print Morris, the author of several works on the intelligence services of Britain France and the USA, as well as the authoritative book, "Philby: The Hidden Years" realised that the allegation, unless successfully challenged, could put him in danger when travelling to certain countries on research projects.

The thought of being detained by secret police in some far-flung country where alleged British spies are not received kindly forced Morris into the decision to issue writs for defamation.

The writs were issued against Searchlight magazine, its then editor (now publisher) Gerry Gable, columnist, Ray Hill and the then printers Russell Press. Morris then contacted our victim co-ordinator, Andrew Jones to obtain what help and advice we could offer. We congratulated Morris on his courageous decision and warned him that he was likely to suffer various forms of harassment and intimidation from Searchlight or its allies. A prediction that was uncannily accurate. Morris thanked us for our advice and concern and in return, he offered his accountancy skills to analyse the financial accounts submitted at that time by the Searchlight organisation. A service for which we were extremely grateful.

In fact, every time Morris contacted us it seemed that he did more for us than we ever did for him. He was that type of person.

Although we never discussed politics with him he made it very clear he was intensely patriotic and extremely proud of his twelve years army service. He also maintained that he was convinced that certain people at Searchlight merely masqueraded as anti-fascists whilst working to their own hidden agenda. A conclusion, that has since been accepted by the more enlightened on the political left.

The case eventually came to court in February 2000. The printers, Russell Press made an offer to settle their defamation and paid money into court. Lawyers acting for Searchlight had entered a defence but strangely no one from the group actually entered the witness box to give evidence. This it would seem is a favoured Searchlight tactic, adopted on legal advice to prevent being cross-examined. The jury were obviously not impressed by this legal tactic and found the defamation proved and awarded costs and damages to the plaintiff. Another defeat for Searchlight.

The stress and strain involved in battling against Searchlight and its State allies obviously did massive harm to Morris's health, but in taking this action against the powerful and ruthless Searchlight organisation Morris Riley did a service to all those that believe in democracy and freedom from harassment.

Morris Riley was a hero, and a martyr to the cause of democracy and decency. He will be sadly missed.

DIRTY TRICKS

Over the years Searchlight has gleefully reported on the last minute cancellations of political opponents meetings "when venue owners were warned of the true identity of the meeting organizers".

But will they report that their buddies in the SWP/ANAL's Tipton, West Midlands branch had their planned "Unity Conference" due to be held at the Tipton Sports Academy, Sandwell, West Midlands cancelled at the last minute after the licensees, Plyvine Catering "discovered the true identity of the conference organizers.

We wonder who told them?

MI5 FORCED TO OPEN FILES

The Information Tribunal has ruled that the British Secret Service MI5 should reveal information held on file on individuals unless national security would be put at risk.

The tribunals ruling follows an application to the tribunal by Liberal MP Norman Baker for access to files that he believed MI5 held on him.

MI5 argued unsuccessfully that they were exempt from the Data Protection Act, but the tribunal ruled that applications for access must be processed on a case-by-case basis.

The Data Protection Act states that individuals should expect a reply to their request within 40 days.

The author, David Irving successfully acquired access to files held on him by the Board of Deputies of British Jews. These showed that the Board had been instrumental in the Canadian authorities decision to ban Irving from entering Canada.

SEARCHLIGHT AND POLITICS

An important part of Searchlight's agenda is to appear to the more naive as just a dedicated, non-political anti-racist organisation. But we know better.

Thanks to independent researcher Larry O Hara, in his latest (and best so far) magazine, Notes from the Borderland issue 4, we now know that Searchlight joint-editor; Steve Silver is a member of the Stalinist, "Communist Party of Britain".

The only organisation that we could find with this title was the well-financed Communist group who publish the Morning Star daily newspaper from a set of grotty offices above a betting shop in the East End of London.

If Stevie really is associated with the CPB then we will obviously have to have a much closer look at this organisation in the near future. Also, if Larry is correct then Stevie joins a long list of Searchlight luminaries who are or have been associated with the extreme-left. Prime examples are, Searchlight publisher Gerry Gable (former Communist Party candidate and Morning Star journalist), Daphne Liddle, Searchlight photographer (and New Communist Party journalist) Searchlight journalist Renee Sams (also writes for the New Communist Party journal, New Times) and Searchlight's European editor, Graeme Atkinson (ex- Morning Star journalist).

This also could explain how an advertisement for the Morning Star mysteriously appeared in the March issue of Searchlight.

There is of course no such thing as a "free lunch".

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The extension of the Data Protection Act to include data kept as hard copy as well as computer held records has forced us to transfer all of our files on Searchlight and its supporters to another country.

This will delay enquiries, so please allow more time for a reply when making enquiries.

Regrettably, the fee for enquiries has had to be increased to £3 per enquiry.

GOT INFORMATION?

Then telephone
New TARGET HOTLINE

07751 052726

All information will be treated as confidential

New TARGET

December 2001.

Dear Colleagues,

Our apologies for the delay in publishing issue 18. The reason is not that a certain alleged member of our team is incarcerated in a Greek prison on charges of spying, but a matter of finance and news.

On finance, we never print a new issue of New Target until sufficient numbers of the previous issue have been sold, and the necessary finance raised. Issue 17 sold slowly, thus the delay. Fortunately, a colleague who we shall call "R" bailed us out with a generous donation.

Secondly, we have been conducting three separate investigations, any one of which could have been our main story. The first and second are as yet still incomplete and the third, a rumour that Searchlight had persuaded a young man to become a traitor to his friends and betray them for money became public knowledge via a recent BBC Panorama programme.

A source close to the BBC warned us that Searchlight fan, Andrew Bell "was involved in another exposure of the far-right". The BNP confirmed that the BBC were doing a programme on them but were not at all worried.

What we hadn't done was to link this information with a rumour that alleged C18 "hardman" Darren Wells "was a wrong un". Our source had suggested that Judas Wells was working directly for Special Branch, rather than Searchlight. Given that Wells gave evidence in court against his one-time leader a few years ago, the word agent provocateur springs to mind. We shall dwell more on both Wells and the Panorama programme in our next issue.

Finally, we are gratified to notice that Gable and his gang now take us seriously. Two articles in Searchlight, July and September, show they view us as a genuine threat to their comfortable existence. Quite right too! And isn't Gerry still embarrassed about us catching him out lying about the alleged KKK/ Blair letter? The feeble Millbank excuse doesn't work either, as we also have a letter from them denying the existence of the KKK missive Sucker! And, there's more to come next year!

Thought of the month

"In all of its years dealing with nazis who have something to tell or sell us Searchlight has never betrayed a source". Searchlight. September 2001. Issue 315, page 16.

Gerry, to name just a few betrayed by Searchlight;

Karl Hanson, Ray Hill, Timmy Hepple, Mathew Collins and now Darren Wells.

A Searchlight source is a very brief career!

Wishing all those who believe in political freedom, free from harassment and intimidation, a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Until Victory!

Andrew